

envision and enquire are hosting two briefing days for gallery and museum educators, artists and others working with young people. The day offers a one-stop shop to find out about current agendas relating to young people, education and the arts.

Manchester Art Gallery
10 September 2007
10.00 – 16.45

Tate Britain
17 September 2007
10.00 – 16.45

Children and young people are high on the national agenda with a host of new policies and initiatives addressing young people's services, education and the arts.

Some, such as Every Child Matters and Children's Trusts, have implications for partners and funding, while others, such as Arts Award, offer an opportunity to support young people's creativity through recognised accreditation.

Find out / explore / action plan

This briefing day will enable gallery educators to:

- meet some of the key people involved in both arts- and youth- focused strategies
- understand current agendas
- explore and debate their impact on the gallery sector
- action plan for future partnerships, resources, provision and access

The envision and enquire research projects are managed by engage, the National Association for Gallery Education.

envision supports galleries to develop innovative ways of working with young people to develop youth-friendly practice
